

AUSTRALIA HAS NO ONE TO GO AGAINST DUKE

Sydney Sporting Writers Speculate as to Who Can Be Matched Against Hawaiian in the Event of His Making Australia a Visit

Australian swimming enthusiasts are evidently looking forward to seeing Duke Kahanamoku perform in their waters before long, and expect that the local speed marvel will accept the invitation. Cabled some weeks ago. As a matter of fact, it is very unlikely that Duke will make the trip at all, but the Australian opinions and forecasts are nevertheless interesting. On the whole they are highly complimentary to Duke, and show that the Australians have little hope of lowering his colors.

The Sydney Daily Telegraph, of Nov. 6, has the following story: If Duke P. Kahanamoku comes to Australia who is going to test him? That is the question that has been agitating swimmers ever since the idea of inviting the wonderful Hawaiian to Sydney was mooted. The proposal is to get Duke here in time to compete in the State championships. But it will be poor sport to see the youth from overseas getting runaway victories in all the sprints in which he competes. And that is what will happen if something unforeseen does not occur.

Will there be any Australian capable of giving him a race? It looks as if there will be a dearth of first-class sprinters this season. Longworth, last season's sprint and distance champion, will not, he says, enter the water till after Christmas, except for what the Americans would call "jow swims." If he adheres to that intention it will be practically impossible for him to strike form in time for the big events. He would need to be better than ever to beat Kahanamoku, and even if he should train hard he is not likely to get above his condition of last year. Longworth would seem to be the only Australian who has got it in him to beat the Hawaiian over 100 yards—the only swimmer living for that matter. There are those who hold the opinion that, were Longworth to specialize, he could give Duke his wash in a short race, but they are also getting sanguine. Longworth would undoubtedly extend him; but beat him—well, that is another matter. Kahanamoku is a swimmer of the sort only produced once in a century, if at all.

Longworth disposed of Cecil Healy of course, as is only natural, is the next to be considered. Healy, next to Duke, is the world's champion over 100 metres. He swam second to the Hawaiian at Stockholm, and was not beaten by so very much either. He is a great and game swimmer, is Healy, every ready in an emergency. But will he, after his most strenuous tour of Great Britain and Europe, feel inclined to continue his training to meet the Duke? He must be very nearly stale already. It does not seem probable; but should he do so, Healy is the man who is almost certain to be run up every time. Hardwick, who can push anybody over 100 metres, has given it out that he will not compete in big individual races this year, and so he can be dismissed. Boardman has proved himself speediest over the distance, after these three; but, despite his greatly improved pace gained on his trip abroad, he is not in the same class with the others.

If there are to be exciting contests with Kahanamoku it will be a new swimmer, or one of whom little is expected, who will provide the sensations. It is under such circumstances that a new champion is born. There is no saying but that some new man will come along at the right moment, as did Longworth.

There is plenty of good material in sight. The most likely-looking of the lot is Solomon, of the Manly Club, who has got the pace and all that goes to the making of a champion, but who shows little inclination to train. Everyone connected with swim-

YOUNG TOGO SOON TO FIGHT IN HONOLULU

Little Brown Bantam Has Completely Recovered His Eyesight and Comes to Visit His Brother in This City

Young Togo, the great little Japanese fighter who flashed into the spotlight of pugilism about a year ago, is coming to Honolulu in the near future. He is expected here before the first of the year, and will be seen in action in the ring provided that an opponent can be found for him.

Togo was exploited by Eddie Robinson, the well known, manager and sporting man, and made a great name for himself in the ring. He was scheduled for a main event in San Francisco, and received an awful beating, showing no class whatever. After the fight it developed that Togo was almost blind, and that he had been suffering for some time with his eyes. It was thought that he would lose his sight entirely, but it now develops that he has completely recovered, and is ready to get into harness again.

Togo has a brother in this city, George Otani, and he naturally turns to Honolulu as the scene of his ring reentry. He is now under the management of Charlie O'Connor, and a letter dispatched by Otani yesterday will bring the pair to Hawaii as soon as possible.

OLD RING LUMINARIES ARE FOND OF BROADWAY

There probably are more broken-down ex-star pugilists holding up corners on the main streets of New York than any other city in the world.

Buffalo Costello, the one great Australian middleweight, Young Corbett, formerly featherweight champion of the world, Young Griffith and numerous other decayed glove artists hover drearily among the scenes of their past triumphs.

Cal McCarthy, from whom George Dixon won the title, died broken in health and a pauper. Dixon went the same route, and dissipation drove Terry McGovern to the madhouse, from which, however, he was afterwards discharged as cured. Young Frisco alternates between the Bridewell and barrel-house saloons. Although Abe Attell has lost the featherweight title, he is still O. K. in a financial sense, and the man who whipped him for the honor—Johnny Kilbane—is a shrewd youth who stows away his iron men as fast as he gathers them in, and is piling up a snug little fortune, which will never be thrown to the winds in riotous living. Johnny Coulon imitates Kilbane's laudable example, and much the same may be said for the members of the heavier grades.

The late Stanley Ketchel spent his money as freely as he made it.

mining would like to see a trained Solomon. He would be a swimmer to beat. Among the other possibilities who have already been on the outskirts of the limelight, might be mentioned A. W. Barry (Sydney), S. C. Wright (North Sydney), Alec Wickham and "Teddy" Wickham (Rose Bay), Tas. Jones (Rose Bay), H. M. Hay (Manly), H. Christiansen (Drum-moyne), and F. Cummins (Sydney). The above all have it in them to do things.

It is not likely that Kahanamoku will swim in distances beyond 200 metres. Above 100 metres local swimmers will have a bigger say in things, for Duke is reported to be no stayer. However, those who have watched him say that, with more practice, he will be a demon over 200 metres.

Taking everything into consideration, things do not look too bright for the success of Australians should Kahanamoku come.

Thursday the Rollers and Splitters have it out for the cellar championship. The two tie games will also be decided.

TIME LIMIT ON WALK.

Pedestrians who wish to try their luck in the Kalakaua Avenue walking race will have to show considerable speed before they can draw down any of the handsome prizes that have been generously donated by the merchants and business men in the city. It has been decided to put a time limit of 17m. 30s. on the distance, and anyone finishing outside of this will not be entitled to participate in the division of the spoils. The record for the distance is 15m. 10s., held by Dick Sullivan.

There are eleven entries in the walking race to date, three in the bike event, and three in the fat men's race.

PRELIMINARIES LOOK GOOD, TOO

While the main event between Eddie Madison and Sergeant Baner-sock is naturally attracting most of the attention given to Saturday night's fight card, the prelims are well worth looking into and those who are in the seats in time to see the bouts of the evening should be given their money's worth.

Promoter Dick Sullivan is going on the theory that it is better to have a variety of short bouts, than a few number over the longer route, and he has therefore scheduled three prelims, two of four and one of six rounds.

Allen and Willis, two 158 pounders from Schofield Barracks, who have shown up well in bouts staged at the post, will be on for the semi-wind-up over the 6-round route. Kibbey and Donovan, another pair of fast soldier boxers, will go four rounds.

The most interesting thing in the prelim line, however, is the meeting between Blondy Ross, the Sane, gambian back driver, and Young Jack Johnson, of the tug Navajo. This is a grudge fight, and has been put on as a special feature, at the earnest request of the principals. It seems that the pair had an argument one night over back tariff, and instead of indulging in a common and undignified sidewalk brawl over the affair, decided to settle their differences in the ring. They are in strict training for the engagement, which has taken on something of the aspect of a duel to the death, for the lie has been passed, and honor must be satisfied.

Madison says he will have no difficulty in making the weight, and that he already is below the 150 pound notch. He is working hard every day, his sparring partners being Ted Selman and Blondy Ross. Baner-sock can't let the grass grow under his feet and get down to the required poundage, but he stepped on the scales without tilting the bar last time, and can do it again, and be strong.

BREAKERS IN THIRD PLACE

Dark Horses	30	12	18	.400
Spliters	25	9	16	.360
Rollers	25	8	17	.320

The Breakers and Dark Horses played the final game of their schedules in the "Y" Bowling League last night, the result being some of the closest of the entire tournament. The former team took three straight, but right up to the last frame of every game the result was in doubt. The second game was won by the difference of a single pin.

This assured the Breakers of third place in the race, while the Expanders and Cherries must fight it out in their final three-game match next Friday for the championship. The Expanders must take all three games from the league leaders to tie for first.

Last night's score:	Breakers	White	Cherries	Expanders	Dark Horses	Spliters	Rollers

Brickley, Harvard Gridiron Star, May Go Into Vaudeville Sketch

For the baseball hero to jump into the theatrical spotlight has been common, but a new wrinkle in stage-dom comes with an offer to Charles Brickley, Harvard's present football hero. An offer of $500 per week has been made to Brickley by a New York agency for a little vaudeville sketch. So far Brickley has refused the proposition, as he takes his notoriety mildly, but it is said that he will accept the offer and tell of his sensational gridiron playing behind the footlights shortly.

Football experts are practically unanimous in calling Charles Brickley, the Harvard halfback, one of the greatest football players ever developed. Keene Fitzpatrick, the Princeton trainer, goes so far as to call him the greatest ever. "Brickley was by all odds the star of the Princeton-Harvard and Yale-Harvard games, even outside his field kicks," said Walter Camp recently. "He appears a very versatile young man. He was a strong line snasher, kept going well and made one of the prettiest runs of the game, besides being ever on the alert on the defense. If he maintains his present gait through his remaining college years he will rank very high among the greatest heroes of the game." Captain Wendell said: "Charles Brickley's work proved, I think, that he is one of the most remarkable players that football has ever produced if not the very best of them all. When you think of the all-around game he played against Princeton and Harvard it certainly makes one believe that he is about the best player that the game has ever seen."

Brickley is just 21 years of age. His record as a point winner for his team has been phenomenal, for out of the 176 points run up by the crimson during the present season, Brickley has contributed 94, including nine touchdowns, thirteen field goals, and a goal from a touchdown. Besides being a crack football player and all round athlete, Brickley is a good student, and stands well in all his classes.

A BASKETBALL LEAGUE AT 'Y' ROBINSON AGAIN SOCCER CAPTAIN

Among other sports, a series of interesting basketball games are on file to take place at the Young Men's Christian Association during the coming winter. At present, teams are being formed by the members of the different clubs throughout the city, such as the Myrtle and the Healan boat clubs, who are also members of the association, and a schedule will have a chance to play each of the other teams, the two with the highest percentage at the end of the round robin to play a series for the championship.

There will also be a few other teams which will be formed by the members of the association who do not belong to any other clubs, and in this way enough organizations will be on hand to provide a number of games each week. The schedule will be announced in the near future.

"Did he take me up?"—Scott.

"Well, we are safe in third place now."—C. A. White.

"I don't want to take off all the prizes."—Wiz: "I KNOW you don't."—White.

Friday is the day that the Cherries and Expanders scrap it out for the championship.

For the Dark Horses Wilkinson had high average, 174, while Clark had high score, 199.

C. A. White had both high score and average for the Breakers, 213 and 180 respectively.

HIGH THIRDS BEAT PUNAHOU

In an extra game of football to decide the championship of the third team series, the McKinley High School third eleven won from the Punahou third by a score of 13 to 6 on Alexander Field yesterday afternoon.

The game yesterday practically ends the interscholastic football series for the season, and as a result the Punahou first and second elevens are the champions of the first and second team series, while McKinley comes in with her third team the champions.

The lone score by the Puna was made by Henry White who took the ball on a forward pass and carried it over the line. No goal was kicked. For the Highs, Melin scored two touchdowns and Crozier kicked one goal.

Now that the football season is over, the teams of all the schools will turn their attention to soccer, and practice in that sport has already started.

coached by Brother Elmer and if his success in coaching is as great as it has been in previous years, there is no doubt but that St. Louis' record will be good.
